Trump administration appeals order to turn over unredacted Mueller report

Report details Russian interference in 2016 election.

President Donald Trump's administration on Monday said it has appealed a judge's ruling ordering it to turn over an unredacted copy of former Special Counsel Robert Mueller's report detailing Russian meddling in the 2016 U.S. election to a Democratic-led congressional committee.

In a filing in federal court, the Justice Department also asked U.S. District Judge Beryl Howell to put on hold her Friday order while the appeal is pending. Howell directed the administration to turn over the unredacted report to the House of Representatives Judiciary Committee by Wednesday, while also validating the legality of the impeachment inquiry against Trump.

The department previously tried to block Democrats from accessing the full Mueller report, saying that doing so would require the disclosure of secret grand jury materials and potentially harm ongoing investigations. The Judiciary Committee issued a subpoena seeking the full report.

"A stay is warranted because, without a stay, the department will be irreparably harmed," the department wrote in its notice to the court. "Once that information is disclosed, it cannot be recalled, and the confidentiality of the grand jury information will be lost for all time."

The judge ordered the House Judiciary Committee to respond to the department's requested stay by noon on Tuesday. The administration's appeal went to the U.S. Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia circuit.

The scathing 75-page opinion by Howell, the chief judge in her federal judicial district, blasted the White House and Justice Department for "stonewalling" House subpoenas for information in the impeachment inquiry and declared that there was no need for the House to pass a resolution formally launching the probe.

The ruling undercut claims by Trump and fellow Republicans in Congress who have attacked the process House Democrats have used.

Mueller submitted his report to U.S. Attorney General William Barr in March after completing a 22-month investigation that detailed Russia's campaign of hacking and propaganda to boost Trump's candidacy in the 2016 election as well as extensive contacts between Trump's campaign and Moscow.

Barr, a Trump appointee who Democrats have accused of trying to protect the president politically, in April released the 448-page report with some parts blacked out, of foreign interference in a U.S. election.

"According to public statements made by the Speaker of the House, the Mueller report is not the current focus of impeachment activity," the department wrote.

The department added that it believes the appellate court will agree that Democrats have "not demonstrated a particularized need for the grand jury information in light of the information already in the public domain and the much different focus of ongoing impeachment proceedings in the House." Chicago teachers strike continues after talks fail

2 Classes were canceled for about 300,000 students in Chicago on Monday as the teachers' union and public school district failed over the weekend to resolve a deadlock in contract talks over class sizes, support staff levels and pay. Each side blamed the other for the impasse in the third-largest U.S. school district, where the strike began on Oct. 17, and the union, which represents the city's 25,000 teachers, has been without a contract since July 1. The strike is the latest in a wave of work stoppages in U.S. school districts in which demands for school resources have superseded calls for higher salaries and benefits. In Chicago and elsewhere, teachers have emphasized the need to help underfunded schools, framing their demands as a call for social justice. REUTERS

Missouri cites 'concerns' about abortion clinic safety

3 The fate of Missouri's only abortion clinic was at stake on Monday, as a state arbiter heard arguments from Planned Parenthood and state officials who have threatened to close it and make Missouri the sole U.S. state without legal abortion services. Planned Parenthood, the women's healthcare and abortion provider that operates the facility, sued the state health department in June for its refusal to renew the St. Louis clinic's license. The state court judge presiding over the case referred the matter to the Administrative Hearing Commission, an independent arbiter. The hearing, which is expected to last several days, began on Monday with opening statements from both sides and testimony from state witness Donna Harrison, a doctor and director of the American Association of Pro-Life Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

Trump rips Chicago as more dangerous than Afghanistan

President denounces city while paying visit for first time since 2017.

U.S. President Donald Trump came not to praise Chicago but to condemn it – and did he ever.

In remarks to a meeting of the International Association of Chiefs of Police, Trump said Chicago with its high rate of murders compared unfavorably with Afghanistan, where the United States has been at war since an invasion triggered by the Sept. 11, 2001, attacks.

"It's embarrassing to us as a nation. All over the world, they're talking doing his job," Trump said of Johnson.

Homicides in Chicago in 2018 numbered 561, down from 653 in 2017. The Chicago Tribune said 436 homicides had been recorded so far in 2019 in the third most-populous U.S. city.

Chicago Mayor Lori Lightfoot, a Democrat, responded to Trump on Twitter, saying it was no surprise that Trump "brought his insulting, ignorant buffoonery to Chicago."

"Luckily, in this city, we know the truth and we will not let anyone – no matter how high the office – denigrate who we are as a people or our sta-about Chicago. Afghanistan is a safe place by comparison, it's true," said Trump.

Trump also blasted Chicago Police Superintendent Eddie Johnson, who had refused to attend the event to express opposition to the Republican president, who was making his first trip to the heavily Democratic city since taking office in early 2017.

"Here's a man that could not bother to show up for a meeting of police chiefs – the most respected people in the country – in his hometown and with the president of the United States. And you know why? It's because he's not tus as a welcoming city," she said.

A few thousand people rallied outside of Trump Tower in Chicago, where Trump was inside raising about $4 million for his 2020 re-election campaign and the Republican National Committee.

They held signs protesting Trump and his presidency, banged on drums and blew whistles. "Impeach and convict" read one sign.

Retired suburban teacher Claudia Feeney, 68, said Trump should be impeached.

"He's a disgrace to the presidency and a danger to the country," she said.

Public's help needed in missing Shiba Inu case

A reward is being offered after a puppy was stolen from the PSPCA's Erie Avenue headquarters.

MORGAN ROUSSEAU
morgan@metro.us

The Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals is seeking the help of the public after a Shiba Inu puppy was stolen from the organization's Erie Avenue headquarters in Philly Friday.

The dog, a male puppy believed to be between two and three months old, is a stray that had just arrived at the shelter earlier that day. The dog was not available for adoption, according to PSPCA spokesperson Gillian Kocher.

"This individual came in to the shelter and went straight to the location where the puppy was housed, placing it inside a backpack," Kocher told Metro in an email.

Due to the laws, the PSPCA was required to keep the pup in a public space because strays must be available for the public to see.

"While we have received feedback asking why the kennels were not locked, we cannot lock the kennels due to issues with safety if there was a need to evacuate in an emergency," Kocher said, adding that the organization wants to make sure the missing puppy is safe.

The dog was micro-chipped, so if he is found the PSPCA can confirm his identity.

Surveillance images released to the public show the person of interest walking through the shelter's office area and also kneeling by the dog enclosures. He wore a black Nike hoodie and a black hat at the time of the theft, which happened around 5 p.m. at the headquarters, located at 350 E. Erie Ave.

As of Monday, a reward was being offered.

"Thanks to the support of an anonymous donor, a $1,000 reward is being offered for information leading to the arrest of the individual in question and the safe return of the dog," Kocher said.

Anonymous tips can be sent to the Pennsylvania SPCA's cruelty hotline, 866-601-7722 or cruetly@pspca.org, but the organization asked that anyone who recognizes the person of interest or spots him with the dog call 911.

"Any help is greatly appreciated as we want to spread the word far and wide," Kocher said.

Trump says U.S. may release parts of Baghdadi raid video

He died 'whimpering and crying and screaming,' Trump claims.

U.S. President Donald Trump said on Monday he may declassify and release part of the video taken on Saturday of the raid in Syria in which Islamic State leader Abu Bakr al-Baghdadi was killed.

The video is believed to include aerial footage and possibly footage from cameras mounted on the soldiers who stormed Baghdadi's compound.

"We're thinking about it. We may," Trump told reporters before flying to Chicago. "We may take certain parts of it and release it."

Trump said on Sunday that Baghdadi had died "whimpering and crying" in a raid by U.S. special forces in Syria, fulfilling his top national security goal.

World leaders welcomed Baghdadi's death, but said the campaign against Islamic State, a group that carried out atrocities in the name of a fanatical version of Islam, was not over, with so-called lone wolves likely to seek revenge.

Baghdadi, who had led the jihadist group since 2010, killed himself by detonating a suicide vest after fleeing into a dead-end tunnel as U.S. forces closed in, Trump said in a televised address from the White House.

"He was a sick and depraved man and now he's gone," said Trump. "He died... whimpering and crying and screaming."

Kremlin spokesman Dmitry Peskov declined to say if the United States had told Russia about the operation in advance.

But he added: "If this information is confirmed we can talk about a serious contribution by the president of the United States to the fight against international terrorism."

French President Emmanuel Macron said Baghdadi's death was a major blow against Islamic State but "the fight continues to finally defeat this terrorist organization".

British Prime Minister Boris Johnson said: "We will work with our coalition partners to bring an end to the murderous, barbaric activities of Daesh (Islamic State) once and for all."

Australian Prime Minister Scott Morrison told reporters: "This is a many-headed monster... As you cut one off, another one inevitably arises."

In Southeast Asia, an important focus for Islamic State, officials said security forces were preparing for a long battle to thwart the group's ideology.

The Philippines, Indonesia and Malaysia, home to some of Asia's most organized Islamist militants, said they were braced for retaliation by Islamic State loyalists, including "lone wolf" attacks by radicalized locals.

Baghdadi had long been sought by the United States - which offered a $25 million reward - as leader of a jihadist group that at one point controlled large areas of Syria and Iraq, where it declared a caliphate.

Though Baghdadi's death will unsettle Islamic State, it remains capable and dangerous, said Delfin Lorenzana, defense secretary of the Philippines, where the group's influence has taken a hold in its troubled Mindanao region.

"This is a blow to the organization considering al-Baghdadi's stature as a leader. But this is just a momentary setback considering the depth and reach of the organization worldwide," Lorenzana said. "Somebody will take his place."

Islamic State has not declared a successor as leader. But the group has in the past proved resilient, continuing to mount or inspire attacks in the region and beyond despite losing most of its territory in recent years.

Israeli Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu praised the "impressive achievement".

'Global ring' involved in smuggling 39 found dead in UK truck, court told

A court heard on Monday that a global ring had been involved in smuggling the 39 people whose bodies were found in a truck near London, as the driver faced charges of manslaughter and people-trafficking.

The discovery of the bodies last week in a refrigerated truck on an industrial estate near London has shone a spotlight on the illicit trade that sends the poor of Asia, Africa and the Middle East on perilous journeys to the West.

The truck's driver, Maurice Robinson, appeared in Chelmsford Magistrates' Court via video link. The 25-year-old, wearing a gray sweatshirt, spoke only to confirm his name, address and British nationality.

Robinson faces 43 charges in all - 39 counts of manslaughter as well as accusations of conspiracy to traffic people, conspiracy to assist unlawful immigration, and money laundering.

"This involves a global ring facilitating the movement of a large number of immigrants into the UK," prosecution lawyer Ogheneruona Mercy Iguyovwe told the court. She said other suspects were still being sought.

Robinson did not apply for bail. He was remanded in custody until Nov. 25, when the case will continue at the Old Bailey, London's Central Criminal Court, and he will enter a plea.

He was arrested shortly after the bodies were found near the English port of Purfleet. The shipping container they were in had traveled from Zeebrugge in Belgium.

"The whole nation and indeed the world has been shocked by this tragedy, and the cruelty of the fate that has been suffered by innocent people who were hoping for a better life in this country," British Prime Minister Boris Johnson wrote in a book of condolences.

Interior minister Priti Patel told parliament the investigation would unravel "criminality that could stretch half way across the world".

Many of the dead appear to have come from Vietnam's northern rice-growing areas of Nghe An and Ha Tinh, two of its poorest provinces.

"If I could travel back in time, I wouldn't have let him go this way," said Hoang Thi Ai, mother of Hoang Van Tiep, 18, who is feared to be among the dead. "I clean his room every day with the hope that he wasn't in that deadly truck."

"This involves a global ring facilitating the movement of a large number of immigrants into the UK."

Ogheneruona Mercy

Police have said few of the victims were carrying official identification, and that they are resorting to fingerprints, dental records, DNA and photographs from friends and relatives.

Vietnam said Britain had sent dossiers seeking help in identifying four of the bodies.

Deputy Foreign Minister Bui Thanh Son said Vietnam was still unable to confirm the nationality of any of the victims.

Bui Thi Nhung, 19, is believed by her family to be one of the dead.

They said she had left Nghe An in August, making her way from China to Germany, then Belgium, where they believe she entered the container.

About 70 percent of Vietnamese trafficking cases in Britain between 2009 and 2016 were for labor exploitation, including cannabis production and work in nail salons, Britain said last year.

A report last March by the Pacific Links Foundation, a U.S.-based anti-trafficking organization, identified Nghe An as home to many victims of human trafficking. REUTERS

New Sex Cream Works Like Magic for Older Men

Recent warnings on sex drugs leads to the creation of an amazing no pill option; key ingredients activate spencial sensation pathways, enhancing erections and triggering arousal

Daniel Watson
Medical News Today

BOSTON – The medical community now has a safer and more effective alternative to sex pills, which they can immediately start offering to male patients. It will not require a prescription.

The alternative, called Sensum+®, is an amazing new sex cream that activates a sensation pathway on the penis known as TRPA1.

When applied as directed, it leads to incredible arousal and much more satisfying erections.

It also promotes powerful climaxes and ultimately results in significant improvements in performance.

"Men can expect outstanding sexual improvements with regular use. The penis will become hyper sensitive, making them easily aroused and excitable" explains Dr. Henry Esber, the Boston based scientist who introduced Sensum+® to market.

"And that's because Sensum+® does what no other sex pill or drug has done before – it stimulates a special sensory pathway right below the skin, which leads to phenomenal sensation."

Overtime, constant exposure (especially if circumcised) leads to decreased penis sensitivity, which can cause problems with arousal and erection quality. There just isn't enough feeling to get excited."

"Diabetes, anti-depressants and normal aging also leads to desensitization, a can make the situation even worse."

"This is what makes Sensum+® so effective and why the clinical studies and clinical use studies have been so positive."

MISDIAGNOSIS LEADS TO UNEEDED PRESCRIPTIONS

After years of clinical research and testing, Dr. Esber and his team have discovered an incredible compound that triggers arousal while helping men achieve erections more easily.

This compound isn't a drug. It's the active ingredient in Sensum+®.

And according to users, it produces sensational results. Many men report remarkable improvements in sexual performance and overall satisfaction.

They are more sexually active than they've been in years with the average Sensum+® user over the age of 50.

Clinical studies show Sensum+®'s key ingredient activates the TRPA1 sensation pathway right below the skin of the penis.

According to research, many men adults and seniors who suffer sexually have lost sensation in their penis due to constant rubbing and exposure and health related issues such as diabetes, hernia surgery, use of some anti-depressants, multiple sclerosis, and other type of illnesses.

This desensitization often makes sex extremely challenging. Without a 100% feeling in the penis, its next to impossible to get truly aroused.

Worse, modern day sex drugs have absolutely no effect on sensation and are laden with side effects. They simply stimulate an erection by enhancing blood flow.

It's why most men are rarely satisfied after taking them and why Sensum+® users are always stocking up on more and couldn't be happier.

"We knew the science behind Sensum+® was there, but we never expected results like we're seeing. It's far exceeded our expectations" said a spokesperson for the company.

A STAGGERING 80% IMPROVEMENT IN SENSATIVITY

Researchers have conducted several clinical studies on Sensum+® and the results from the most recent are undoubtedly the most impressive.

A data analysis of three clinical surveys of 370 men showed that an amazing 80% of Sensum+® users experienced dramatic improvements while using the cream and as a result were aroused easier and a phenomenal boost in performance.

Additionally, 77.4% of men also reported much more satisfying climaxes, making sex for both them and their partners nearly 300% more satisfying.

"I have full feeling and sensitivity back in my penis. Everything feels better. My erections are harder, I'm more easily aroused, I can finally climax again. This stuff honestly works like magic in the bedroom. I couldn't be happier at 66!" raves one Sensum+® user.

HOW SENSUM + ® WORKS

Sensum+® is a new sex cream for men that's to be applied twice a day for the first two weeks then just once every day after.

There are no harmful side effects for either the user or partner. It also does not require a prescription.

The active ingredient is an organic compound known as cinnamaldehyde with a patented combination of sexually rousing extracts.

Research shows that as men get older, they often lose sensitivity to the penis.

Although very subtle, this desensitization can significantly hinder sexual performance and lead to serious problems with becoming aroused and staying/getting hard.

The cinnamaldehyde in Sensum+® is one of the only known ingredients to activate a special sensation pathway on the penis called TRPA1. Once activated, it restores tremendous sensation to the penis, stimulating arousal and powerful erections.

NEW SEX CREAM MAY REPLACE POPULAR SEX PILLS: This new patented clinically proven arousal cream is now available nationwide.

This would explain why so many users are experiencing impressive results so quickly and why the distributors of Sensum+® offer their low cost cream with an amazing guarantee.

Alfonso Gomez-Rejon talks "breaking the rules" with the Director's Cut of "The Current War."

MOLLY GIVEN
MollyGiven@metro.us

In 2017, Alfonso Gomez-Rejon's period-piece "The Current War" starring Benedict Cumberbatch and Michael Shannon was screened at the Toronto

International Film Festival and overall, the film was not well received. Throw-in the mess that was the Weinstein Company (who produced the film) and the historical drama was almost lost altogether.

Two years, five fresh scenes, multiple re-shoots and a new score later, audiences now get "The Current War" Director's Cut, almost unrecognizable from the Toronto screening — exactly what this epic story needed. Gomez-Rejon's vision finally shines through this cut, and the director wanted nothing more than to break the rules with his latest feature. The film takes place in the past, but there is nothing dated about it; on the contrary, it's quite cutting-edge — almost as if you really do dive into the brilliant minds of men like Thomas Edison or Nikola Tesla and see what they saw — the future.

Gomez-Rejon sat down with Metro to talk about his inspirations for the re-shoots, his connection to the film and what he hopes audiences take away from this futuristic look into the past.

Why were you initially drawn to this story and why was it important for it to be told?

I thought it was less so about electricity and Edison and Westinghouse as it was about this epic rivalry between parts of myself and us as human beings — which I also thought could be something universal. It's the ego and ambition, and how far someone will go to be remembered or to win. When that stake is the creation of the modern world as we know it, I just thought there was something beautiful and emotional about that epic battle in addition to it being based on true events. It was the emotion behind it that [motivated me] to do a little bit of self-exploration — and there were also some things that I was still working through from my last film "Me and Earl and the Dying Girl" regarding grief and my father. I really responded to Edison and how he was continuing to work through the loss of his wife and keeping her alive through his work. He was in such denial that she had been taken from him and nature had won. I thought that was an incredibly emotional journey that I wanted to take on as well. It's about legacy, it's about mortality and there's this presence of mother nature throughout the film as well — which was the ultimate winner of the war in my opinion — that was important. Plus, I get to make a movie in the past about the future — what would that feel like? To me, it felt very contemporary, and that intrigued me. We wanted to break some rules because the men who we focus on the film were the ultimate rulebreakers.

You really did achieve a futuristic look for a movie that is set in the past, can you tell me a little more about how you made that happen? Every department who worked on this film from makeup, to production, to costumes — everything was about interpreting the feeling of the moment, not just getting everything exactly as it was. It's all about interpreting the past and finding something that felt true and honest. For example, the inspiration for Tesla wasn't going to be the real Tesla but it was going to be David Bowie, or there were Jagger and Dillon influences. That is what I believe brings out the best in artists that I surround myself with because they are not looking for the exact same replica. That's just no fun. It makes it all feel like an art project and the approach to it was to break some rules along the way and just be in the moment with the actors. The opening shot of the film was important, it should feel futuristic but it's also about the characters. Edison as a person is a show, and in the opening shot, he is literally in the middle of this ring of light because he's a showman. Then you meet Westinghouse and he's in a domestic setting having a quiet moment with his wife anticipating the arrival of his hero for dinner who he wants to break bread with, and that says a lot about him. But overall [the film] is all about going to the edge and trying to create an experience.

The film's release is automatically a director's cut, why were the re-shoots important for you?

The reason it's called the director's cut was because there was an earlier version of the film that screened at the Toronto Film Festival in 2017 and it was a very rushed, very compromised work in progress in the middle of a very chaotic time from something that would eventually collapse. That defined me, the legacy of the film and the film's future because of that very powerful and very public screening. This was an opportunity for the studio to hear me out — and they gave me that as a studio. Martin Scorsese was also able to give me the gift of time and clarity and freedom to find the movie that I intended to make from the beginning. In that process, there were a handful of scenes that I had intended to shoot early on that were cut for financial reasons. The clarity that time gave me allowed me to see the missing pieces of the puzzle. Time, clarity and finance allowed me to shoot five additional scenes and produce a new score — but even with the five added scenes, the film is still ten minutes shorter than the Toronto cut. Of course, as a filmmaker, or maybe as a perfectionist, I only see the mistakes. But I am really proud of this movie, and this version of the movie is the version I intended for the world to see. It captured the energy and the emotion that I wanted the film to have.

Overall what do you hope people now take away from this new director's cut of "The Current War?"

I hope for other filmmakers and artists it shows that art is worth fighting for and that sometimes you do get a second chance.

"The Current War" Director's Cut is now in theaters.

Four of the city's top mixologists give their favorite fall cocktail recipes ahead of the James Beard Foundation's Raising the Bar event.

MOLLY GIVEN
Molly.Given@metro.us

The James Beard Foundation and the City of brotherly Love have certainly gone hand in hand the past few years (case in point: Zahav winning the coveted top prize of Outstanding Restaurant in 2019 and K'Far's Camille Cogswell winning the Rising Star Award in 2018.)

This year, there is another layer to the already delicious friendship James Beard and Philadelphia have – the all-new Raising the Bar extravaganza. The spirited event will feature light bites from some of the state's top hotspots

Participating mixologists include Aaron

Macdonald, Nealon, Polise and Mueller aside from collaborating at the Raising the Bar

The best time to bet on the Eagles to win Super Bowl LIV came last week when the Birds were at +3000 and there was little faith - locally and nationally - in Doug Pederson's squad to turn things around.

What a difference one convincing road win makes. The Eagles are now +2200 to win it all at MetroBet.us/Sugar.

That's not as good as it was several times over the past month in the value department, but +2200 is still a solid investment for a team with a world of talent and a soft back-end of the schedule.

Here's a look at the top 10:

Chiefs +1400

Vikings +1800
Cowboys +2200
Eagles +2200
Rams +2500

Offering value here are the Chiefs, who narrowly lost to the Packers Sunday night.

Kansas City's modus operandi right now is to simply make it to the postseason – regardless of seeding - and to make sure that Patrick Mahomes is healthy for games in January.

If Andy Reid can get those two things, the Chiefs offer tremendous value at +1400.

The Kansas City defense is also finding itself as it has registered 14 combined sacks over the past two weeks. If the KC defense can just be average in the playoffs, and Mahomes puts on his magic hat once again, the Chiefs will be right there.

Remember that crazy stuff almost always happens in the second half of the regular season, and in the postseason. Consider that last year at this time the Redskins were leading the NFC East at 5-2, and the Bengals were

World Series betting: Game 6

Best bets

After taking all three games in Washington, the Astros will look to wrap up a second World Series championship in three years against the Nationals at Minute Maid Park on Tuesday. They'll send Justin Verlander to the hill against Stephen Strasburg. The Astros beat Washington by an aggregate score of 19-3 in Games 3 through 5. Strasburg was effective in Game 2 of the World Series, allowing two runs on seven hits in six innings of work while fanning seven. A first-inning homer by 'Stros third baseman Alex Bregman accounted for the only damage on the evening in which the Nationals dominated proceedings 12-3. Verlander, who took the loss in Game 2, will be looking for revenge on the mound. But he's 0-5 with a 5.73 ERA for his career in the Fall Classic and 0-3 with a 5.40 ERA in his last four playoff starts. Washington charged the Virginia native with four runs on seven hits and three walks over six innings in Game 2 of this series before breaking things open late. However, the Nats offensive struggles at home were so bad, it's hard to have faith that they'll bounce back in Game 6. Take the Under as the best bet of the evening, but don't be surprised if Washington forces a Game 7.

BLATHERING SCANDRICK, RUN GAME INSPIRE SEASON-SAVING WIN

THE SPORTS
PROFESSORGLEN

@RealGlenMacnow

Orlando Scandrick provided some bulletin-board material for the Eagles ahead of their Week 8 win over the Bills. GETTY IMAGES

Thank you, Orlando Scandrick.

Thanks for flapping your gums to Skip Bayless on national TV (if blubbing to Skip Bayless on FS1 counts as national TV). Thanks for spewing venom — some truth, mostly lies — at the last NFL franchise that would have you. Thanks for your takedown of Eagles players, coaches, leaders, system, GM and everyone that ever wore green.

I can't prove Scandrick's polluted invective was the spark that woke up the somnolent Birds Sunday, as they pounded the Bills, 31-13.

But after a tumultuous week capped by Scandrick taking a flamethrower to his short-term employer, the Eagles answered with a dominating win in Buffalo. This one should ease nerves inside the organization and the fan base, at least for the next six days.

"The guys in our locker room understand that enough is enough," head coach Doug Pederson said Monday on the WIP Morning Show. "Nobody likes the distractions. But sometimes that can help a team come together. I'm proud of the leaders on this team for taking it upon themselves to make that happen."

Indeed it did. The offense rushed for 218 yards Sunday, or 5.3 yards a crack. The analytics geeks insist you win these days only through throwing the ball, so it was a thing of beauty to watch Jordan Howard (Thunder) and Miles Sanders (Lighting) lay waste to what was ranked the NFL's No. 3 defense going into the weekend.

Give credit to an embattled offensive line that had been confused and overpowered in blowout losses at Minnesota and Dallas. The 8.5-minute drive to open the fourth quarter and ice Sunday's win rode on the backs of those big uglies.

Give credit as well to Pederson, who just endured the worst week of his coaching career. Each season since he has been here, Pederson has endured a do-or-die game during the season. Each time, his team has won.

Pederson must have searched through the franchise archives to discover the screen pass, and used it to counterpunch Buffalo's aggressive pass rush. Coach Doug also unveiled a two-back formation, most notably on Sanders's 65-yard TD sprint, where Howard served as a fullback.

And let us all applaud the embattled QB. Carson Wentz's stats were not flashy (172 passing yards and one TD). But he made no mistakes Sunday and helped win the game as much with his legs as his arms.

Wentz ran for 35 yards — again not glossy numbers. But in that deciding fourth-quarter drive, he scampered for two first downs on third-and-forever. The best came on a busted screen play that could have been disastrous if Wentz didn't scurry past a half-dozen flailing Bills.

Sunday's win didn't do more than keep the Eagles' season alive — but that is no small thing. They return home for a three-game stretch against the Bears, Patriots, and Seahawks. No breathers there.

Then they finish with a long-awaited five-game stretch that includes the Dolphins, Giants, Harriton High School and the Bux-Mont Pop Warner All-Stars.

Oh yeah, the Cowboys rematch fits in that stretch, three days before Christmas. Dallas will soon be embarking on the tougher part of its schedule — including a six-week campaign against opponents who currently own a collective record of 30-14-1.

There's a great chance the Dec. 22 rematch winds up determining the NFC East, where only one team is likely to make the playoffs.

Here's hoping we get Orlando Scandrick back in the TV studio with Skip Bayless that week so those two jabbering ninnies can fire up more deep thoughts on the Eagles. That could prove to be a good holiday present for all of us.

The best from Joe Girardi's introductory press conference as Phillies manager.

ON JOINING THE PHILLIES

"I'm well aware of the passion for the game of baseball here. I've lived it as a player and a manager and I'm truly excited to be here.

This is a special place. My first road trip as a big-league player was to Philadelphia... It's pretty amazing and I'm just very thankful."

ON EXPECTATIONS IN 2020 AND BEYOND

"I know the importance of winning here and that's what we want to accomplish here.

The passionate fans of the Phillies were great, they weren't easy to play against and I want it to be that way

Joe Girardi was introduced as Phillies manager on Monday. GETTY IMAGES for years to come."

ON THE PHILLIES FANS

"It means a lot to me that the fans are behind me and more important, what the organization did."

ON WHAT DREW HIM TO THIS JOB

"What's so attractive about this club... I'm well aware of the importance of winning in this town.

In the 90s they were great, the 2000s, they were great. This team has a history of being successful. I'm selfish. I want to win. That's why

I came here.

You have dedicated ownership, dedicated general manager and front office, and dedicated fans who want the same thing."

ON IF HE CAN HANDLE THE PHILLY MARKET

"I think the importance of winning and how you deal with that on a daily basis... I really grew up in a city in a sense as a manager in a place where you were expected to win every year. Those were heavy expectations but I embrace that."

ON THE AVAILABILITY OF PITCHING COACH LARRY ROTHCHILD, WHO WAS FIRED BY THE YANKEES ON MONDAY

"We are going to talk about every name that's out there and find the best one for Philadelphia. I obviously have close ties to Larry and we'll discuss everything."
